2nd Chance 4 Pets Featured in Animal Wellness Magazine

LOS GATOS, Calif. (March 17, 2010) –2nd Chance 4 Pets was featured in the February/March 2010 issue of Animal Wellness magazine in an article that described the importance of lifetime care for pets. 2nd Chance 4 Pets, a nonprofit animal advocacy organization based in California, is dedicated to educating pet owners about the need to plan for their pets' future should their pets outlive them. Amy Shever, founder of the all-volunteer organization, shared basic steps that pet owners could take to ensure their pets' future care.

According to Shever, one approach is for pet owners to make legal arrangements for their pets' long-term care. For example, pet owners may choose to leave their homes to a person who can live in and care for their pets. "Don't assume that your children or family will take over the care of your pets," says Shever. "Following a few basic steps and setting up a plan is not complicated and can make a tremendous difference in the welfare of your pets' future."
